

Addiction

Addictions come in various forms but the one thing they have in common is the diminishing of the quality of life and long-term health of the addict, as well as the continuous long-term strain on NHS services. With up-to-date knowledge, health professionals can support patients towards self-regulation and taking control of own health. We have provided a list of relevant articles from MA Healthcare journals dealing with this area, thereby providing your staff with research, information and tips that will support both their work and the quality of care for their patients.
